Dear Ken

Just one tale I mentioned at Sali's Memorial was a memory from 1969 when we were together in Cambridge. She was running the Cambridge TM Center, and we were good friends. At that time, Teacher Training courses were ongoing, and everyone who left and came back from one of those courses was noticeably transformed. Their faces radiated new beauty, and their spirits had a new serenity that was notable and remarkable. When Sali decided to go to TTC, she was already so beautiful and had such a powerful presence, that I thought she couldn't possibly get any better. Well, when she returned, she had diamonds in her eyes and her facial features had changed so noticeably that I was convinced, on first sight, that whatever was happening at TTC, I wanted that for myself. So, Sali was my inspiration for going to TTC.

Besides being friends, she rented a room in my Cambridge house, so we were quite close. She worked tirelessly at the TM Center, and was an inspiration, not only from her dedication and hard work, but also from her clarity of mind and strong leadership. She was more than a bright light, she was exceptional in every way, and totally dedicated to Maharishi and his teaching.

After becoming a TM teacher, I then returned back to Seelisberg to work on International Staff, and Sali at that time was working as a dedicated close assistant to Maharishi. She was my link to him if I needed to have a question asked or if he needed to get a message to me. It's as though we were sisters, and she was always taking care of me and watching over my needs.

Probably everyone thought of her that way, because she had that quality. She was tremendously efficient and had powerful organizing skills, but in spite of being enormously busy with the greatest of responsibilities, she never lost the human touch to watch over people and do what was right.

She was the brightest light, and an inspiration to all who knew her, and personally speaking, I feel so blessed to have been connected to her. We were and always will be spiritual sisters.

Kate
